FIRE INSURANCE AND WAR

IF A MAN OWNED A FACTORY AND spent huge sums to pay for fire insurance, but refused to put aside ten cents to remedy defective wiring, faulty flues, and other defects which made fire probable, it would not be long before his friends and relatives gathered about to have his head

There never has been a factory owner like that and there never will be. But mankind as a whole seems to be bent on making a very similar record in regard to the danger of war. A current bulletin from the League of Nations Association in New York illustrates the point. The League's budget for 1936 has just been revealed. During this year the League will spend slightly more than $9,237,000, all told. This, for comparative purposes, is about all told. This, for comparative purposes, is about equal to four days' expenditure of the United States 1936 armament budget.

Similarly, the cost of supporting the League from 1920 to the present moment is substantially less than the cost of maintaining Japanese troops in Manchukuo in 1934. Great Britain has paid to the League, from the first to last, about one-fourth of the price of a new dreadnaught. Incidentally, even this expense has been considerable gain, for the League's rescue of Austrian credit in 1922 enabled Great Britain to recover a loan to Austria of £2.500.000. Britain to recover a loan to Austria of £2,500,000, which otherwise would have been written off as a bad debt.

This, then, is the way the world is willing to spend for peace. For fire insurance, in the form of armies, navies and air fleets, it will pour out billions of dollars; for fire prevention, in the form of the one international organization which can do anything toward keeping the peace, it spends next to nothing. one international organization which can do anything toward keeping the peace, it spends next to nothing. If there is anything logical about a world that lays out its money that way, the logic is not visible to the naked eye.

A good deal has been said lately about the "death" of the League. Certainly the League has proved unable to check the Japanese in Manchukuo, the Italians in Ethiopia, or the Germans in the Rhineland. But each failure merely emphasizes the world's dire need of a League which would be truly effective.

Unless modern civilization is to collapse utterly in the fires of war, there must be some strong, concerted action to remove war's causes and to compel adventurers to keep the peace. Such action can be taken only through the League or through some or-ganization remarkably like it. How long will it be before the world at large is ready to realize that fact?

As things stand now, we are spending all our money on fire insurance and letting fire prevention take care of itself.

THE BRITISH CABINET

T IS RELIABLY REPORTED FROM LONdon that Premier Baldwin will not surrender the emiership, neither as a result of the now famous "leak" nor as a result of his government

Much ado has been made about the reorga net. It would seem to station of the British cabinet. It would seem to be far off. According to Mr. A. C. Cummings, the Southam Publishing Company's London representative, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, whose early retirement was also forecast, explains that he has no intention of relinquishing office. There remains only for Premier Baldwin the task of reorganizing his cabinet, devising new policies and getting more loyal support from the coalition parties, a task in which he is helped today by the declaration of The Times that the opinion in the House of Commons and that the opinion in the House of Commons and country is still predominantly favorable to the government and its leader. A big shakeup in the cabinet at present may, therefore, be ruled out.

What the British government does is its own business; but it is permissible to say that it is a Conservative government with a "National" label. Mr. Baldwin, of course, makes no bones about the fact that he is a Conservative. He is honest in his political beliefs. He may be wrong; but he thinks he is right. He is entitled to his own opinions. In this mood, apparently, he does not propose to give up his job until he feels he has adequately discharged his duty to his country and all that that entails.

With all these suggestions of cabinet changes in Britain it always should be borne in mind that the rank and file of the electorate still subscribe to the old-fashioned principles of Liberalism—the greatest good for the greatest number.

BUCKINGHAM PALACE

ONCE MORE IT IS SUGGESTED THAT Buckingham Palace and its palatial grounds may be disposed of for a building site. The selling price is put at about $15,000,000.

Anybody who has seen Buckingham Palace would scarcely call it a thing of beauty—and certainly not a joy for ever. And we are told that three years ago there was a project to convert the palace into a hotel. King George disliked the palace and Lord Esher once said: "King George's dream is to demolish Buckingham Palace and, with money obtained from the sale of gardens for building purposes, to reconstruct Kensington Palace as a town residence."

Kensington Palace would be an ideal residence King Edward. It is to be hoped that King orge's dream may come true.

THE END OF "RED" RYAN

THE CASE OF "RED" RYAN IS A SOR THE CASE OF RED READ IS A SOR-did and tragic one. It is especially tragic for Policeman Lewis, whom he shot to death while the guardian of the law was discharging his duty. Few tears will be shed on the passing of a notorious criminal. The sympathy of all, however, will go out to the relatives of Policeman Lewis.

It may be fitting, moreover, to suggest that former Premier Bennett will be feeling more than a little bit blue about this business. With the best intentions in the world more than a year ago he went to Kingston Penitentiary, in which institution "Red". Ryan then was incarcerated, and talked to the man. He was there to do a life sentence; but after Mr. Bennett had talked to him, got his point of view, became convinced that if he were given his liberty he would become a law-abiding citizen, it was arranged that "Red" should be liberated.

Yesterday's Canadian Press dispatch tells the story eloquently. Here are some extracts from it: "I shall never let Mr. Bennett down. He talked to me as man to man. I can never hope to pay him for his amazing sympathy. I want to say this to boys and young men here and in every part of Canada: Go straight; don't keep bad company; my example has been a horrible one, but from now on I am going to live straight.

"It's great to be free. You don't know how it feels to be free after those years of confinement. All I want from life is a job—it doesn't have to be a good one, just so that I can live."

Mr. Bennett did and recommended what he thought was right. And as he contemplates his action, however, he may find consolation in the fact that he is not the first one who has had his confidence in

SCIENTISTS AND MOTORISTS

IF THE CAUSES OF MOST AUTOMObile accidents are reduced to psychological fac-ors, scientists tell us, the real trouble can be traced inattention, lack of judgment, recklessness, thought-essness, love of speed, slow wits, or excitement. The lessness, love of speed, slow wits, or excitement. The scientists tell us, for one thing, they would prohibit persons from driving at night because of peculiarities of vision; they would require others with high accident records to practice driving under the supervision of a trained "specialist in accident prevention"; and, finally, they would inaugurate schools for drivers, attendance at which would be compulsory for offenders and ultimately required for obtaining a license. At the same time, these psychologists would modernize traffic regulations in accordance with the findings of scientific research. It would seem to the uninitiated that their suggestions merit a trial. that their suggestions merit a trial.

PLATFORM OR NO PLATFORM

N ILLUSTRATION OF THE GENERally-accepted fact that political party platforms cannot be expected to mean the same after election day as they were thought to mean before, comes from Washington.

There it is being recalled that a plank in the 1932 Democratic platform, on which Roosevelt and his party rode into power, called for: "A navy and army adequate for national defence based on a survey of all facts affecting the existing establishments, that the people in time of peace may not be burdened by an expenditure fast approaching $1,000,000,000 annually."

The record of current performance shows that the House of Representatives has for the next fiscal year appropriated $531,000,000 for the navy, as against $297,000,000 in the last year under Hoover; against $297,000,000 in the last year under Ploover; has voted $383,000,000 for the army; has authorized construction of two battleships to cost about $100,000,000; and raised the authorized strength of the air force from 1,800 to 4,000 planes. The total is well over the dreaded $1,000,000,000 mark speci-

For those interested in knowing how platform obstructions can easily be hurdled we commend for consideration the explanation of Chairman Vinson of the House Naval Affairs Committee. Completely ignoring the platform, he naively can say: "The reason this budget is so large is due to the failure of the Republican party in the Hoover administration the Republican party in the Hoover administration to carry out an adequate defence programme. It now is incumbent on the Democratic party to afford the country the national defence which the Republican party failed to afford when it was in power."

Looking at the mounting armament bills, one is put in a receptive mood toward the recent comment of Senator Gerald P. Nye at Washington when he said: "National defence has become altogether too much a racket for profit, a racket greater than any ever devised by a Capone—an international racket."

FIREWORKS

THE FREWORKS were fine the other night. I never knew there were so many people in victoria before. The entire population appeared to be out on the streets to see the beautiful spectacle. This shows you that, at heart, people appreciate true beauty. They will go a long way to see lovely pink and blue stars falling from skyrockets into the harbor. They will sit all evening in a car to wait for the show to start, or stand on a curb until they are nearly exhausted.

At this same season, when skyrockets drop pink and blue stars from the sky, there are other sights about here which are not so spectse-ular but perhaps worth seeing. I suppose the Olympics, all blue and white against the sky, cannot compare with fireworks, but they have a certain pleasant look. The woods at our island are nice and green in their spring clothes. The white stars of the dogwood along the highway, while not equal to the pink and blue stars of the rockets, are still interesting.

From Oak Bay, Mount Baker rises

From Oak Bay, Mount Baker rises out of the mist across a field of yellow broom which flows and bubbles in the sunlight like bubbling, molten gold. The May trees are in bloom all over Victoria in billows of red and white as soft as velvet, and the liliaes throw their perfume prodigally upon the wind and the first roses are coming out.

In these last nights of May there is a young moon and the stars themselves are not half bad to look at. But I suppose these things cannot compare with the gorgeous pink and blue stars from the skyrockets. They draw the crowds. You never see any crowds looking at Mount Baker, the broom, the Olympics or the dogwood. They are not expensive like fireworks.

PRE-WAR

FOR THE week-end holiday I got hold of some real pre-war stuff. It was made in 1913 by a fine old British firm which has since gone bank-rupt because its products were too costly to make. The man I got this pre-war stuff from didn't want to part with it. He offered me a number of modern brands, which I indignantly refused. I was walking out of the place when he said, "Wait a minute," and crept steathilly upstairs into a dingy loft where he keeps a lot of interesting things.

Presently he came down again with a large receptacle in his hand and, peering out into the street to see that we were not observed, he opened it and poured some of the contents into a pint bottle. It was pre-war stuff all right, of a superb amber color, and it gurgled deep, with a pre-war laughter as it flowed into the bottle.

"Smell it," said the old man.

pre-war laughter as it flowed into the bottle.

"Smell it." said the old man. "Ain't it gorgeous, though? You can't get it now for love or money. If the other fellows knew I was sellin' it to you they'd murder me. Why, you could almost drink it. It takes age to make it like that. Varnish and whisky are the same that way. They need age on 'em. Now, I don't know much about whisky, being a teetotaler, but this here varnish, I know about it all right. Lay it on thin, on a warm day. Thin mindju, you don't need much of this rese.

know about it all right. Lay it on thin, on a warm day. Thin, mindju, you don't need much of this prewar stuff."

Handing me the bottle, he sealed up the varnish can with loving care. I could see that he regretted already that he had opened it for me. Especially as I was only going to use it on an unworthy ten-foot rowboat. LETTER

WHILE YOU ENJOY this early summer in sated ease in the city yonder, we are battling for our lives out here. We are battling the brown caterpillar hordes, holding them in check until nature can get going with its parasites. It is a fierce struggle in which the skill of a few experts like me is matched against vast numbers of the enemy, like the Italians in Ethiopia.

Burning is good. Cutting with a penknife, as practiced by the little boy from next door, is effective, but laborious. The old-fashioned country system of removing the nests and tramping on them with hobnalled garden boots seems a little crude and unscientifie, but there is a certain finality about it. You must admit that. WHILE YOU ENJOY this early duracientific, but there is a certain finality about it. You must admit that.

I started to pay a penny to the little boy next door for every caterpillar's nest he could discover. I thought it would cost me about tend cents for the season. When it had run up to $1.15 I began to realize that caterpillars were a luxury for the rich only.

I am happy to report, however, that his alster persuaded him that caterpillars make interesting pets, with their nice smooth coats and intelligent eyes. So the little boy from next door has started to keep them comfortably in giass jam jars, with plenty of succulent green leaves to eat. He is paying me a cent for every tent of caterpillars move. I am hopeful of canceling out the $1.15 I owe him before the tenting season is over.

SOCIAL CREDIT AS PANACEA

To the Editor:—The ceremonies held during the week-end and the response on the part of the public, indicate the profound loyalty of the average Canadian to the empire. Its institutions and its traditions. The day is not yet with us when people-entirely fall to appreciate their wonderful heritage as citizens of the greatest empire which has ever existed and which has accommissed so mysted.

wonderful heritage as citizens of the greatest empire which has ever existed and which has accomplished so much on behalf of freedom, liberty and justice, not only for the motherland and the dominions, but for the native populations of the various dependencies and colonies over which the British flag flies.

The British Empire is undoubtedly the greatest example of successful empire building in the history of the world. Empires of the past have crumbled and fallen because they were governed by keeping conquered nationalities in perpetual subjection Not so with the British Empire, however. The principle of British government is the encouragement of reaponsibility in the minds of its peoples, to eventually lead to complete self-government under the Union Jack. Often this process is slow and gradual, but the principle—the principle of ultimate self-government—has never been repudiated by Great Britain. Consequently, the various units of the empire are seemingly held together by the weakest of links. Links which, nevertheless are in reality the strongest possible, for they are forged of love and loyalty to the throne, of friendship and kinship towards the Mother Country.

That the British Empire is an immense force for good throughout the world in the present uncertain state of international relations is recognized by all nations. It is the greatest asset for world peace, for love of the British Empire does not imply unfriendliness, certainly not emity, towards other nations, On the contrary, it indicates our natural and special interest in members of our own family—the British family—and symbolizes a pride in the achieve.

Today's Contract Problem

North has doubled East's contract of four hearts. When South's opening lead holds the trick, he continues with the ace of spades. How should declarer play to this trick?

South unwisely discarded one of his spades, and finally found himself one trick short of his contract.

Solution in next issue. 14

His partner berated him for overbidding, and their dispute came to me for settlement.

South could have made his slam. Had he discarded a club, instead of a spade, and followed it up properly, he would have fulfilled his contract.

The second trick would be won by the sec of spades and a low spade ruffed on the third round. The declarer would lead a low club from dummy to the ace and another low spade would be ruffed in dummy. Now the king of clubs could be cashed and the ten of disposale led.

IT HIMSELF

For any child, growing up means far more than merely adding inches to his stature and pounds to his weight. It means also the piling up of a number of skills and the development of new abilities which turn him into an increasingly happier and more independent person.

Before the end of the second year, the child exhibits a consuming interest in dressing himself. He can spend half the morning trying to pull on his clothes. At first interest in the process itself is enough, but if the interest is to continue the child must enjoy the satisfaction of success. Otherwise, the effort becomes distasteful and boresome, and he will soon stop trying.

ONLY A LITTLE HELP

The fore sighted mother will let him try to dress himself, offering help only when the child is exasper-ated by repeated failures, and then only enough to pull him past the worst obstacles.

worst obstacles.

In view of the essential element that the feeling of success plays in keeping the child in a mood to try increasingly more difficult skills, the modern garments for children play no small part. They are designed so that to dress oneself is little more arduous or difficult than wrapping a handkerchler around dolly.

ZIPPERS ARE FUN

ZIPPERS ARE FUN The openings in the clothes are large enough so that they can be slipped on easily. And what is better, the openings close with one swift pull of a slide fastener, an act which the child will repeat over and over, fascinated and excited with his easy mastery of it. Garments which are so simple to put on and fasten make dressing a joy rather than a laborious task.

HOW TO CUT DOWN RECIPES

Most recipes make too much for a family of two. My. own recipes are planned to serve four. The average recipe found in standard cook books is calculated to serve six. So you will have plenty for two persons. Only do be sure to use of each ingredient when you use half the recipe you will have plenty for two persons. Only do be sure to use of each ingredient when you reduce a recipe. If five eggs are called for it is a good idea to use three small ones. When you sue packaged goods follow the instructions on the box explicitly. The manufacturer has gone to great trouble to provide you with these directions and they are planned to give you full satisfaction in using his product. If, after the first trial, your personal taste demands a change you can make it.

Edmonton, May 27.—Feeling there are opportunities and a need for women ministers in Canada, Miss Audrey Black, who received her Bachelor of Arts degree at the University of Alberta convocation on May 15, plans to enter St. Stephen's College of Edmonton next fall with the definite intention of training for the United Church ministry.

Although Miss Black, daughter of Rev. A. E. Black of Edmonton Central United Church, understands women are not yet allowed to be ordained, she hopes they will be by the time she graduates. Three or four women have studied theology at St. Stephen's in recent years, but Miss Black is the first to undertake it with a serious view to ordination.

The question of whether women thould be accepted for ordination by "to United Church has been discussed at almost every general meeting of presbyteries in recent years ind it will be debated again at the general assembly in Ottawa in august. Two days later a letter arrived from Mrs. Abigail Dinwiddle—a letter that revealed Mrs. Dinwiddle to be exactly the sort of person Hiatt had described her as.

"No time to waste now," he said britisquely. "The sooner we get her to the hospital, the better. That's ail I cen tell you."

"Can I see her?" Toby asked.

The nurse shook her head. "Not tonight. She's very weak and the doctor doesn't want her to be disturbed. I imagine that you'll be able to see her tomorrow morning." Toby was there beat morning. She found a pale and wan-faced Harriet lying back against the pillows of the hospital bed. Harriet said, "I'm sorry, Toby, I guess I've made everybody a lot of trouble—"

"Darling, it's all right now. You had us horribly frightened last night, but now everything's all right. The doctor says you'll be yourself in just g few days."

Yes, I know."
The 'few words seemed to have exhausted Harriet. Toby lingered a few moments, and then a nurse said that it was time for her to leave.
From then on, her daily routine included as much time at the hospital as she could spend there. Bill came with her once, and another evening she arrived to find Marty Hiatt sitting beside Harriet's bed There were flowers in baskets and rases about the room—so many that some of them were on the floor.
Harriet's illness had been reported as the result of an accident. She had many friends and all were colicitous about her recovery.
"Wmy, the place looks like a florist's shop!" Toby exclaimed.
Harriet smiled, "It does, doesn't it? It's lovely of people to send them, but I feel selfish with so many flowers when some of the patients haven't any at all. I've asked the nurse to take part of mine to some of the other rooms."

Maty nodded toward Harriet.

She did look better, although she because it is not controlled by a centre in the brain, but is an automatic per-

She did look better, aithough she was still weak. The doctor had ordered that she should remain in the hospital a few days longer.

Toby was cheerful at the hospital, but privately she was worried. Since the day Harriet had received Clyde Sabin's letter she had not mentioned him. Did she still feel that life without Clyde was not worth while? That was why she had done this dreadful thing, of course. There couldn't be any other reason.

If Harriet would only talk about it? But she didn't. She was swetly appreciative of everything that was done for here She lay back against her pillows like a pale shadow of herself. The verve and sparkle, the gaiety that everyone associated with Harriet was gone.

'Impose on her? Why you'll be Speaks Here

An interesting talk on life the world was given yesterday evening by John C. Fishenden, London, England, vice-president of the Royal Life Saving Society, that revealed Mrs. Dinyiddie to be exactly the sort of person Hiatt had described her as.

"It was sweet of her to write me, wasn't it?" Harriet said. "But, of course, I can't go."

Nevertheless, when Sunday morning strived Marty Hiatt haited his car before the apartment and presently was helping Harriet in and stowing her suitcase into the rear.

Toby found it lonely after Harriet was gone. The days had been so full it that she had had little time to herself. Now she had more than she knew what to do with. For no reason at all, calls from the studio dropped off.

They'll 'pick up again." Sally, at the Model League office, assured her. Toby hoped they would. Jay Hillyer was out of town. Bill seemed to be busy at his job; at any rate, she didn't hear from him. Then the weather turned hot. It was June, but the sun beat down on the pavements as though it were August, and what hreeze there was only added to the discomfort. Feople said they "felt it" because the heat had come so suddenly.

Toby, finding the apartment un-bearable, set off one afternoon for a movie. The theatre, at least, would be cool.

She reached the avenue and halted, waiting for the traffic light to change. A young man in a white auit was also waiting there. He turned and said, "Why—Gorgeous!"

TELLS OF TRAVELS

China and Japan. where he had been treated well and many fine life saving programmes were staged for his benefit, so that he might be able to witness new and simple methods. The vice-president said on a number of occasions he had been asked to ridicule these shows and to suggest methods of improvement. He did so. Mr. Fishenden urged the local branch to get out on Victoria's beaches and stir up public interest and make the people realize the wide benefits obtained from this training. He told them to use the simple methods that would make it much easier to effect a rescue.

The speaker said he had attended many Olympic Games. He had noticed that British empire participants seemed to have an inferiority complex that spelt defeat before they started. This should not be, Mr. Fishenden stressed, for the empire youth is every bit as good as their opponents from other countries. He conceded, however, that sport finances were not on hand to give the sthietes the breaks they need.

Mr. Fishenden told how Japanese youths were taken right from the schools and put under coaches in nearly every line of sport. While under this training they are kept and placed in good jobs following their sport careers. The leaders were then chosen to represent their country. They have been put through stiff training and are in first-class condition.

stiff training and are in first-class condition.

The youths who represent the empire have to work and only take up the sports in their spare time, he said. "Even although that is so, our representatives should go in there with a spirit of determination from the start and they will go farther than they will if they continue to behave as they have previously." Mr. Fishenden said.

Miss Eleanore Walker contributed two solos and was accompanied by Miss Gertrude Straight. Both were presented with houquets. Walter Lunney acted as chairman and introduced the guest speaker.

URGES STUDY

Dr. Coats, Dominion Statistician, Asks Education in Statistics For Youth

Canadian Press
Ottawa, May 27.—A plea for a three-phase study of statistics in Canadian universities was contained last night in the presidential address delivered by Dr. R. H. Coats, Dominion statistician, before a joint meeting of the Canadian Political Science Association and the Canadian Historical Association. Dr. Coats is retirring president of the political science body.

Dr. Coats said he befleved there should be in every Canadian university three things — a thorough training in statistics technique, than which none "has made more portentious strides or fashioned a keener weapon for new truth"; a working acquaintance with the content of official Canadian statistics. "pass" course for the general student, the last he said: "I do not think anyone, will pass as educated in the world of tomorrow who has not rudimentary knowledge of the laws of mass phenomena."

Dr. Coats dealt with statistics affecting population, a phase, he said, of "tremendous interest to Canada."

Mr. Robathan, one of whose principal duties will be the direction of the religious education of the children of, the Cathedral parish, is already well known to the Anglican congregation of Victoria. In 1934 he conducted the three-hour Good Friday

He received his theological training at the Anglican Theological College, Vancouver, and after his ordination was appointed to the parish of Cumberland, which includes Royston and Denman Island. In 1931 he went to Chemainus.

STORIES IN STAMPS

A young Swedish forester, in 1918, left his sweethcart with the promise that he would write her a daily letter, and went to Guliksberg, a her lover.

One day, a stamp collector discovered that a number of stamps, which the Swedish postoffice department had printed with a surcharge of 12 ore on the 25 ore King Gustav V issue then in use, had crept through with the surcharge invested. He traced the improperly aurcharged stamps to Guilksberg and there found the person who had been using them as postage—the young forester.

When the collector offered 200-kroner for each of these stamps that could be found, the forester rushed down to his sweethears, who dug up her collection of love letters. She was welcome to the letters, but for the stamps with the inverted sur-charges she and her lover got enough money to get mar-ried.

The stamp shown here, with the 12 ore surcharge, is of little value. But those with the 12's inverted are pre-few days there appeared in your col-umns a letter under the above head-King-a youth of eighteen yearsentenced to seven years and ten masterly and stirring protest against the severity of the sentence, and as such leaves little more to be added However, I would like to direct attention to the following points.

1. When the youth was arrested he was found in possession of a revolver (admittedly stolen) and some blank and loaded cartridges.

2. As the revolver was stolen from a house which he had previously entered, it is reasonable to suppose the owner had procured it as a weapon of defence and naturally provided himself with loaded cartridges. When King stole the revolver he, no doubt, took the cartridges also, which accounts for them being found in his possession. No evidence was produced to prove that King himself purchased any loaded cartridges.

3. If the foregoing surmise is correct then King must have taken pains, by purchase or otherwise, to procure blank cartridges.

4. If the owner of the revolver had both loaded and blank cartridges, then it must be assumed King took both kinds and he loses the credit of having purchased the latter, but the solid fact in his favor still remains. viz., that when loading the revolver he deliberately selected the "blanks," tantamount to saying to himself, "I am prepared to steal, but not to kill or risk wounding anyone."

5. According to press reports the shooting was at very close range. Is it not reasonable therefore to assume that if King had not selected "blanks" a gallant officer may have been killed or severely wounded King would of course pay the penalty later, but that would be poor compensation for his victim.

In conclusion: If King's sentence is allowed to stand as at present it is safe to predict that this mere boy of eighteen, not utterly bad, will come out of jail at the age of twenty-five a soured, hardened and confirmed criminal unless he comes in contant with the only Redeeming and Transforming Power alone adequate to meet his case. Surely if we properly appreciate the men on whom we depend for police duty and the risks to which they are exposed, a sensible and practical way to show it will be to lessen the severity of the

SPORTS MIRROR

Still trying to get over the shock of the stunning defeat handed the Victoria United eleven at Nanamö op Sunday afternoon at the hands of North Shore. Playing in the big tournament sponsored by the uptaland city, the United, champions of the Intercity League, had a 5 to 2 defeat tagged on it by North Shore.

The victory of the Shores was no fluke. They were the better club and the three-goal margin was a true indication of the play. The Victoria club was figured to have a stiff fight on its hand but was rated as a certain finalist. The exhibition of the United was a big disappointment to the Nanaimo fans who had expected great things from the intercity titleholders.

Officials of the local league have entered the United as the local representatives for the Dominion Cupseries. The club was figured to have a grand chance to win the right to represent British Columbia in the inter-provincial playdowns that lead to the Canadian final. After Sunday's exhibition one realizes the Victoria team will have to be at its best to take the provincial play-offs. Every team has its off days and that performance in Nanaimo may have

It all happened this way. One of the teachers of a public school almed to put a little higher competitive spirit into trials for the city sports. He dangled before the eyes of prospective track and field performers the lure of silver pleces. It ran something like fifteen cents for a first, ten cents for a second and five cents for a third. The double victory pushed the Cards a full game in front of the New York Glants, despite the triumph of the Terry men over Brooklyn, 7 to 3, behind Harry Gumbert's seven-hit twirling. The Detroit Tigers managed a split in a double-bill with the Chicago White Sox, dropping the nightcap 9 to 2 before Sugar Cain's tight pitching, after homers by Goose Goslin and Dixie Walker helped General Alvin Crowder take the opener 12 to 9.

Roy Honshaw pitched the Chicago Clubs from sixth to third place in the National League with a 10 to 4 win over the Cincinnati Reds. The Phits outslugged the Boston Bees 7 to 2.

B.C. SCHEME WATCHED At present there is a state health scheme established in British Co-lumbia which, it was stated, is not satisfactory to the doctors. The members of the Ontario Medical Council believe a Dominion survey of medical services should be completed before any other provinces adopted any state health insurance scheme.

It is claimed the proposed commission could ascertain the exact cost of illness per capita annually in any given community or municipality. From this information the cost of health insurance either on a voluntary or compulsory basis could be easily derived.

DRUGS CAUSE DISEASE

Many common drugs, formerly considered harmless, are now known to be the agents that cause a variety of disease, Dr. George S. Williamson of Ottawa told the meeting yesterday. These drugs, he said, manifest themselves on the skin in forms known as "drug eruptions," or by abnormal reactions of the internal organs.

Country activities will display more mixtures than a tobacco shop, with an almost equal number seen on city sidewalks. Sartorial Puritans may get the creeping fan-tods over strictly country outfits being worn in town, but to no avail. When genus homo Americanus goes for a style, technicalities go by the board with a gay "so what?"

PLAINER MODELS GAIN

There is a trend to simplicity of line that is in direct ratio to growth of gaudiness in pattern... because the bold plaids and checks would be just too, too, utterly something or other if they were complicated by a mess of tricky shirrings, pleats, belts and super sport-pockets... an eastern university favorite is a jacket whose plain back is innocent of any "sport" treatment except inconspicuous shoulder gussets... take your choice between side or rear vents.

but the former are more favored ... jackets are longer, some of the extreme models having almost the midthigh skirt of a riding sacque ... the three button, single breasted jacket with high-roll lapels leads.

"Another sports model that is very popular has a yoke with an inverted pleat running down to a half-belt ... at shoulder and waist there are two small pleats on either side of the inverted centre pleat ... then there is the paniel-back jacket, with four box pleats from yoke to half-belt ... Hollywood's current favorite has a half-belted back with small shoulder tucks and shirring above the belt that gives a bloused effect ... an old-time model that is showing up among well-dressed groups is the Norfolk jacket.

The sports jacket of the pork-ple hatted lad at the left shows a splashy plaid of the sort currently stylish. However, the bold pattern is tempered by simple lines. Gusset sleeves, side vents and slanted pockets are the only "sport" details. The centre model has a yoke back, halfbelt and small pleats on either side of the inverted centre pleat. An picuous overcheck on a lovat ground keeps the jacket subdued, which gives excuse for the checked slacks. At the left the pipe-smoker displays the newly-revived Norfolk jacket in a windowpane checked corduroy. Because of the distinct pattern of the jacket, he also wears "tempus fugits" faster in the kitchen than any other place, and that if you take your eyes for one second from the vegetables on the stove they burn or otherwise misbehave. And that is where you prove your mettle as a housekeeper by knowing how to turn failure into success.

Any vegetable that has just started to burn can be placed—in its cocking pan—into a larger pan of cold water. The vegetable is conditionable than should be shaken, not scraped, out of the burned pan into a fresh pan or bowl, leaving the scorched portion in the pan. If not done, a little boiling finished. Season and serve as usual and nobody will know the difference.

SHAKE PAN TO PREVENT SCORCHING

An excellent precaution for the new cook is to shake the saucepan occasionally in which a vegetable is cooking. Often the smooth-cut, flat surface sticks and burns before the water cooks away or the vegetable is cooking. Often the smooth-cut, flat surface sticks and burns before the water cooks away or the vegetable is done. Shaking prevents this without crushing as stirring might do. Fotatoes and sliced carrots are examples of vegetables that often sorch.

If too much sait threatens to spoil the soup, add from half a cup to a whole cup of sliced raw potatoes to the kettle of soup. Let stand ten of liften minutes, remove potatoes and acrve. The potatoes absorb the excess sit.

If the mayonnaise separates, take another egg yolk in a fresh bowl and allowly beat in the curdled dressing, continuing as usual until all the ingredients are used.

If a custard sauce curdles, beat it well with a dover beater. This same beater often will beat the lumps out of white sauce that has been made in too big a hurry. To Be Measured . Hollywood.—Science again comes to the aid of motion picture dance directors with the perfection of the "Tap-o-meter," devised to measure the speed of dancers' taps.

Necessary for directors organizing speed choruses, the "Tap-o-meter" is the first practical machine of its kind, according to Danny Dare, dance director for the film "Three Cheers for Love," featuring Eleanore Whitney, Robert Cummings, Roscoe Karns and William Prawley.

Dare, who will not allow dancing girts in his chorus incapable of reaching a speed of at least 250 taps a minute, interviewed more than 400 Hollywood beauties to find the seventeen he finally selected for the picture.

GROUP OF YOUNG GIRLS ASE: What is marriage? And why the taking out of a $2 license and having a few words mumbled over them a preacher makes it right for a man and woman to live together, while it is considered wrong for a couple to set up a love-nest without benefit of clergy or sanction of the law?

But, taking it by and large, it is the best arrangement that wisdom of the ages has been able to devise for the relationship of sexes and the preservation of the family. Particularly has it ordained for the safeguard of women and children. The women are lending a hand to break it down are wrecking their own has of safety.

The is true that men tire of women to whom they are married and less their fancy for them, just as they do of the women to whom they are not married, but the wife has something to fall back upon when she is deserted that the mistress has not. She has the law and property rights and the sustainment of society, while the woman who is merely a light-o'-love has

The sorriest bargain a girl ever makes is when she enters interestore union with a man, for she seidom gets even the wages of out of it. Nine times out of ten she has to support herself and do cooking and housework as well as be a lady love. Don Juans notoriously more prodigal with their vows of devotion than they with their money.

This also is to be said in favor of marriage—that the mere fact of its finality has a steadying influence on most men and women. They realise that they have made their choice of life partners and must abide by it. That keeps the great majority of them from thoughts of roaming. They are not always on the lookout for some one more attractive as the free lovers are, nor are they always vivisecting their own emotions to see if they are thrilling at John's or Maria's footsteps as they used to do.

And that's marriage, daughters. Plenty of trials and tribuplenty of disappointments, but even so the relationship betwee a woman that offers the greatest happiness and security, women. And don't forget security, daughters.
